Task

Task 1: Answer the following question:

Mike woke up and remembered his dream. He had dreamt that he was climbing a mountain which was covered in snow made out of shredded paper. Every time Mike got halfway up the mountain, he was pushed down to the bottom again by a large panda bear. Mike told his friend at work about the dream and she said it must have some hidden meaning. However, Mike does not believe his dream has any meaning. How would Freudian dream theory explain what Mike can remember of his dream? How would activation synthesis theory explain Mike's dream?
