Tell children that if they are asked to keep a special secret about touching, they should say “No, I’m going to tell.” Tell them they have the right to say “No” even to someone who threatens them or to someone they know. (When children are hurt, it’s usually by someone they know,
Class Discussion:

not by a stranger.)

3) Help children identify trusted adults

Talk openly about whom a child would go to in an emergency. Cite specific examples such as the person using a cash register at the mall, a mother with children, or a teacher.

4) Set body boundaries

Teach children to guard themselves by setting body boundaries. Tell them that their private parts are the parts covered by a bathing suit. No one should touch their private parts. If someone does or makes them feel uncomfortable or confused, it's okay to say "No", and then they should tell a trusted adult. Learn more about age appropriate sexual behavior here.

5) Teach children the buddy system

Children should learn that it is always safer to be with a friend or a trusted adult than alone.

6) Teach children to check with others first

Teach children to check with trusted adults before changing plans or going anywhere - even with adults the child knows.

6) Teach children telephone skills

Teach them your cell phone number and to call child helpline services.
