left hand to write. This slowed him down, so the teacher gave him an extra fifteen minutes.

How would you describe the teacher's behavior?

4. Do the activity from pg 25.

Are all these situations fair? Change the ones you don't think are fair to become fair.

Lesson 2

1. Majed and his brothers, Tamer and Yusuf, went with their parents to watch a horse race. The stands were crowded and the boys were not able to watch the races because they were too short to see over the heads of the people in front. Yusuf's father sat him on his shoulders, and Tamer was lifted up by his mother. Majed was left standing. He kept fidgeting and saying, 'It's not fair!'

- Do you agree with his opinion? Explain.

2. With your partner, discuss an unfair situation in which you once found yourself. Think of ways that the situation might have been made fairer

1. Complete Rajeef's mother's sentence: 'Yes, equal but ...'

2. If you were in Rajeef's shoes and saw the lady on crutches standing in the queue, how would you behave?

3. Can you think of any people in your own life who sometimes need extra help, just like the lady on crutches needed help?
